

CALL FOR PROPOSALS

The Undergraduate Diversity Research Grant

The Undergraduate Diversity Research Grant (UDRG) is designed to stimulate, support and recognize outstanding undergraduate research projects related to diversity; and to promote diversity research as a legitimate and valued area of scholarship.

- Looking for high quality proposals to explore issues of diversity on a local, national, and/or global level and its educational, economic, and societal impact.
- Diversity in the context of this grant award includes the exploration of issues related to but not limited to class, culture, disability, gender, race/ethnicity, language, and sexual orientation.
- Looking for projects that will have an impact on the Virginia Tech community.

Research proposals that examine these issues as a primary or secondary focus will be considered. Projects may be new initiatives or work that is already in progress. However, previous grant recipients will not be re-funded for the same project. Up to five grants of $500 will be awarded.

Proposal Deadline: Extended to December 1, 2009
(Late proposals will not be considered.)

Application can be found at www.cae.vt.edu.
For more information, please contact Cheryl B. Gittens at cgittens@vt.edu or Ray Plaza at rp25@vt.edu

UDRG is a collaborative effort between the Office of the University Provost, Office for Equity and Inclusion and the Center for Academic Enrichment and Excellence (CAEE), and is a part of the Diversity Research Initiative.